

DOSED BY HIS OWN DOCTORS.

A Kollicking Hotel Man Reaps a Harvest the Wrong Way.

A FORMER OFFICIAL ARRESTED.

Blanche Somers' Attempted Suicide—Safe Blowers at Work—A Fitzgerald Soiree—City Jottings.

(FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN CORRESPONDENT.)

Early last week V. M. Gorham, of Burlington, Iowa, came to Lincoln on a visit and business combined. Gorham at one time had quite extensive interests in Lincoln and built the hotel which is now called the Windsor, but at the time of completion was named the Gorham, after the builder. Gorham opened the house and kept it for some time, but lack of patronage and other reverses, it is said, drove Gorham out of the hotel. The present proprietor, Nat Brown, Esq., who is favorably known throughout the West, associated himself with Mr. Jeff Glass, an experienced hotel man, some five or six months ago, since which time the hotel has become very popular among all classes of travelers. Gorham moved from Lincoln back to Burlington, which had formerly been his home. He had not visited Lincoln since until last week. A day or two after his arrival here he went on a spree and for several days kept it up. He wandered about the city in a beastly state of drunkenness, and at night visited saloons, and at odd moments gambled for pastime. Last Wednesday night, it is said, he went to a leading gambling house and won $100 at taro and poker, and the next night went to the same place and lost what he had won the previous night, and several hundred dollars besides. When he thought over the matter Gorham concluded that he wanted his money back, and upon going to a lawyer, who is also a counsellor, decided to bring suit to recover the money. The papers have been issued, and the case will come up for hearing in a few days. A persistent reporter failed to reveal the court, where the case is brought, and the parties, but in substance the matter is as given.

Gorham has been something of a sport, and the gamblers seem to be nonplussed that he would sue them, "squeal" at his own misdeeds.

A FORMER OFFICIAL.

M. E. Lusher, a short time ago residing in Lincoln, was arrested Sunday at Hastings and brought back to this city under a charge made out at the instance of a furniture dealer and a disorderly woman. Some time since, and during the state fair, Lusher was employed as a watchman at the city jail. It was during his employment that the jail delivery of seventeen men occurred, and there are now rumors that he was in some way implicated in it. About a month ago Lusher left for Hastings, and before he went it is charged that he carried off some $300 worth of furniture which had been bought on monthly payments. Lusher and the woman had been on intimate terms for quite a period, and it is thought that she induced him to carry off a charge made out at the instance of a furniture dealer and a disorderly woman. A private detective left yesterday for Hastings to bring Lusher back to Lincoln.

THE ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

The woman, Blanche Somers, who attempted suicide at the Windsor, is on the road to recovery, and she is now at a disorderly house on P street, where she is receiving visits from numerous admirers and curious persons. As soon as the woman was pronounced sane, the man, Dolson, and the woman were not married, as stated in yesterday's Bee, they were promptly ejected from the hotel. The theory is that the woman, from a sentimental motive and to gain a little notoriety, possibly took a slight dose of morphine, but not with suicidal intent. The doctors rather confirm this view of the case. The police say they look for a third delivery attempt, before the city will again regain its wonted moral tone.

SAFE BLOWING.

Early Sunday morning the meat market of Bohannon, located on O street, next door to the State national bank, was entered and the safe opened. A hole was drilled near the combination lock, and after it had been blown with powder the door was broken off with a sledge hammer. In the money drawer was $176 in checks, made out by the firm to employees for salaries and $23 in cash and a gold watch. The thieves took the cash and watch, but left untouched the checks, which are being cashed by professionals. The Messrs. Bohannon have an idea that the burglars were local crooks, but there seems to be no definite evidence to that effect.

SAFE BLOWING.

Mr. F. E. Parkinson, the leader of the Fitzgerald home company, returned from New York and the east last Saturday night. He was met at the depot by a committee, the Fitzgerald home company, who escorted him to the hall, which had been appropriately decorated, and after a number of speeches from some of the prominent men of Lincoln, the boys sat down to a sumptuous banquet. Speeches and toasts were the order of the evening. At a late hour the company departed amid cheers for the Fitzgerald home company and their leader. The Fitzgerald home company have held the championship of the state for years, and the people of Lincoln feel justly proud of their success.

CITY ITEMS.

Nathan Blakely and son, Charles, of Beatrice, returned to the city on Sunday on their way to Omaha. Mr. Blakely is one of the oldest settlers of Nebraska, having come here in 1857. He still retains the same enthusiasm which he had for the state in early days, and he was seen at the driving park late yesterday afternoon for a purse of $100, between a horse named Flax, owned by R. T. Knibs, of Sioux City, and a tramp, owned by Fred Robert, of Grand Island, Neb.

The continued fine weather has brought many country people to Lincoln within the past week to trade, and the retail merchants are happy in consequence. Sunday a solemn air in the lower part of the city was visited by the police, who found that it was open and doing business. There was no arrest, but the proprietor was told that another offense would cause a more severe punishment.

Policeman Smith, of this city, returned yesterday from Kearney, where he was called by telegram on account of the very serious illness of his brother, O. T. Smith, who has charge of the farm connected with the reform school at that place. Mr. Smith is still seriously ill with typhoid fever, but he is now expected to recover.

STATE ARRIVALS.

W. H. Anderson, Grand Island; Will Clouston, C. B. Schmidt, Omaha; J. E. Sanders, Seward; R. H. Moffet, Denton; J. C. Roberts, David City; J. B. Porden, Thomas Jensen, W. B. Bates, E. B. Zimmerman, Ulysses, A. L. Strong, H. D. Medlock, Omaha; O. Horn, Syracuse; Rev. Dr. Miller, Ulysses; S. Dec, Omaha; Mrs. Louise Seward, S. M. Dowell, Beatrice; G. H. Powers, Beatrice.

FACTS FROM FURNAS COUNTY.

AKARHOK, Oct. 24.—To the Editor.—This little town of 1,000 inhabitants is located on the line of the B. & M., about forty miles east of McCook. It is a thriving, go ahead place, boasting of two weekly papers, The Pioneer and Mirror, also two banks. All other business is well represented and doing finely. The farmers have had excellent crops. Broom corn has been extensively raised in the county this year, and wagon loads are coming in daily, and much of the crop is being shipped directly east. Furnas county has had a prodigious growth in the last two years, and to be appreciated must be traveled over. Emigrants are coming through daily, and the "Prairie Schooner" is a sight that has ceased to attract attention, except from strangers. The eastern farmer seems to appreciate cheap and good lands, which can be had at from $5 to $13 per acre.

The stock is of the best quality, both horses and cattle, and the people know how to keep it in good working order. Through the patient and much enduring broncho cuts a figure here, it is being rapidly set aside for the American horse.

Building is going on extensively, both in the town and country, the result of putting up substantial dwellings in place of the adobe houses of the early settlers. Political circles are quiet, and both parties have good tickets in the field. The republicans will undoubtedly elect their entire ticket at the county has a large republican majority.

After Diphtheria. A terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistence, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Sarsaparilla does a grand work, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

Diphtheria. A terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistence, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Sarsaparilla does a grand work, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

Very little business is being done in the "justices" courts of this city nowadays. Election is too near at hand.

William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," is in the city, and will remain here a day or two before returning to North Platte. The registers in the various wards announce that they will not transfer names from the old registry books of last year. G. A. Robinson, drunk and disorderly, was a victim to Roundman Matz's vigilance last evening, and was confined in the city jail.

Charles Esters, colored, was an occupant of the city jail last night, charged with being a vagrant. He was arrested by Officer Shields.

The first K. of P. ball of the season takes place next Tuesday night. Tickets are being sold at the rate of 50 cents, and the ball will be held at the city hall.

Charles Surface was fined $5 and costs in police court yesterday afternoon for disturbing the peace by fighting Saturday night in the Planters' house saloon.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to Charles Looman, of Grand Island, and Mary Ann, of Omaha, and Mrs. Eudora M. Snyder, of Hampton, Iowa.

The ladies of St. John's parish will give a dinner and supper at 210 Sixteenth street, Bushman's block, on Tuesday, Oct. 27th, for the benefit of St. John's church, North Omaha. All are welcome. Full dinner 35 cents.

Sunday was the last game of base ball which will be played this season by the "fairies of the field." The club disbanded yesterday, some of the members going to their homes in Chicago and others remaining in this city.

S. N. Meadlo, the veteran showman, has taken charge of the People's theatre, as the old Wood's Museum will henceforth be called. Nothing but first class attractions will be presented, and the theatre will be a number one play house will be maintained. The new management started out with "standing room only" houses at both afternoon and night performances.

Residents near the corner of Fifteenth and Capitol avenue say that three shots were fired in that neighborhood about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, and that they were looking for a third delivery attempt, before the city will again regain its wonted moral tone.

"It is the little rift within the lute that by and by will make the music mute, and it is the little tickling sensation in the throat which brings on hoarseness, sleepless nights and lung trouble. The early use of Red Star Cough Cure will prevent all this. It is a prompt, safe and sure medicine."

Personal Paragraphs.

Senator Van Wyck arrived in the city this afternoon.

P. C. Hinebaugh left for the east yesterday afternoon.

Miss E. E. Greenick returned this morning from New York.

J. H. Russell, advance agent for Kate Castleton, left the city.

A. C. Coble, a well-known stockman of the Powder River region, Wyoming, is in the city.

Mrs. G. W. Clark has gone to Philadelphia to attend the national W. C. T. U. convention.

C. C. Clark, Kewanee, Ill.; James Barber, North Bend; D. B. Smith, Garrison City; E. H. McBeth, Chadron, are at the Canfield.

Alie Newberger, of Cook & Bernheimer, New York, is in the city on his way home from a third delivery attempt, before the city will again regain its wonted moral tone.

Mrs. H. T. Levitt leaves for Chicago this afternoon to meet her husband, who thoroughly restored to health, is homebound from New England.

A. L. Perkins, head book-keeper at Reed, Jones & Co., and one of the most successful men in the city, has returned from a trip to Connecticut, accompanied by his bride, Miss Dimmick, one of the most charming ladies of William's best social circles. Both Robert, of Grand Island, Neb.

The continued fine weather has brought many country people to Lincoln within the past week to trade, and the retail merchants are happy in consequence.

Sunday a solemn air in the lower part of the city was visited by the police, who found that it was open and doing business. There was no arrest, but the proprietor was told that another offense would cause a more severe punishment.

Policeman Smith, of this city, returned yesterday from Kearney, where he was called by telegram on account of the very serious illness of his brother, O. T. Smith, who has charge of the farm connected with the reform school at that place. Mr. Smith is still seriously ill with typhoid fever, but he is now expected to recover.

STATE ARRIVALS.

W. H. Anderson, Grand Island; Will Clouston, C. B. Schmidt, Omaha; J. E. Sanders, Seward; R. H. Moffet, Denton; J. C. Roberts, David City; J. B. Porden, Thomas Jensen, W. B. Bates, E. B. Zimmerman, Ulysses, A. L. Strong, H. D. Medlock, Omaha; O. Horn, Syracuse; Rev. Dr. Miller, Ulysses; S. Dec, Omaha; Mrs. Louise Seward, S. M. Dowell, Beatrice; G. H. Powers, Beatrice.

FACTS FROM FURNAS COUNTY.

AKARHOK, Oct. 24.—To the Editor.—This little town of 1,000 inhabitants is located on the line of the B. & M., about forty miles east of McCook. It is a

DAN DEQUILLE AND MARK TWAIN

The Veteran Comstock Reporter on Whom Clemens Used to Play Practical Jokes.

The appearance of Dan DeQuille as a contributor to a metropolitan contemporary recalls the fact that the Nevada journalist, who uses the signature "Mark Twain," in the early days of his career, was very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His real name is Wright, but those persons who have known him longest have forgotten that he has a claim to any other name than that of Dan or DeQuille. Clemens used to set up all sorts of practical jokes on Dan. They occupied the same room, and the satirical humorist, the good-natured reporter, the two men were very often the butt of Sam Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain. The two men were reporters on the Territorial Enterprise, then, as now, the leading paper of the Silver State. Dan DeQuille is one of the simplest of men, kind-hearted, absent-minded, and with a genuine wit of his own. His